Know Your Hazards

SEVERE WEATHER

FOG

During a heavy fog advisory, visibility is reduced to a 1/4 mile or less. A dense fog can be hazardous to drivers, pedestrians, mariners, and aviators. Make sure your headlights, not high beams, are turned on and reduce speed if necessary.

HAIL

Hail is an accumulation of ice pellets that can range in size and fall in showers. Hail is typically seen either leading up to or directly before a severe thunderstorm or tornado forms. Seek shelter immediately if you see hail falling from the sky.

HIGH WINDS

High winds can occur with or without warning and exceed 58 mph. They can have the same effects as a thunderstorm or tornado. Older homes are more at risk of damage if they have not been updated to code. To minimize damage in high winds, keep your home in good repair. Tack down loose roofing, trim trees, and keep gutters clean.

LIGHTNING

Lightning can strike at any time without warning. If you hear thunder, seek shelter. On average, Florida has over 1.2 million cloud to ground lightning strikes per year. According to research from Vaisala, from 2011 - 2020 there were 246 fatalities in the US due to lightning strikes. 49 of those were in FL. FL ranks #1 in lightning fatalities for the US.

THUNDERSTORMS

The National Weather Service defines a severe thunderstorm as one which produces winds of 58 mph or greater, 1" hail or larger, or tornadoes. Severe factors common to all storms are strong winds, large waves, and storm surge. Thunderstorms can begin at any time and cause severe damage.

AWARENESS

Weather hazards can happen anywhere and at any time. There are severe weather occurrences that can be dangerous to your safety and your property. Always have a plan and know how to react. Make sure your address number is clearly marked on your home. Purchase a NOAA Weather Radio and/or a battery-powered commercial radio and extra batteries. Many mobile phones are capable of receiving Wireless Emergency Alerts (WEAs). These alerts can inform you about life-threatening weather conditions in your immediate area.

IMMEDIATE ACTION

Tornadoes in Florida appear quickly and move fast. They are typically less destructive than tornadoes in the Midwest. However, they are just as dangerous if you find yourself in their path. Know where the safe room is in your home and/or business and be ready to seek shelter immediately.

- Seek shelter in a small, windowless interior room or hallway on the lowest level of a sturdy building. Now is the time to wear a helmet if you have one.
- Mobile homes are not safe during tornadoes. Abandon mobile homes and go to the nearest sturdy building immediately.

- If you cannot quickly walk to a sturdy building, immediately get into a vehicle, buckle your seat belt and try to drive to the closest sturdy building. DO NOT try and outrun a tornado.
- If flying debris occurs while you are driving, pull over and park. The following options are available as a last resort:

- Stay in your vehicle with the seat belt on. Put your head down below the windows. Cover your head with your hands and a blanket if possible.

- If you can safely get lower than the level of the roadway, exit your car, and lie in that area, covering your head with your hands.

TORNADOES

TORNADO WATCH

Tornadoes are possible. Remain alert for approaching storms.

TORNADO WARNING

A tornado has been sighted or indicated by weather radar. Take shelter immediately if a tornado warning is issued for your area.
